

The Birmingham Mail Extra newspaper

Thursday June 5th 2008.

Dancing for joy: Dance Academy students to perform at top venues

A Birmingham dance school is celebrating the success of some of its most talented students.

The Siobhan Collins-McCarthy Dance Academy, based in Harborne has seen ten of its Students achieve merit or distinction in their Royal Academy of Dance examinations. It has also seen Chloe Anne Marie Nesbitt accepted by The National Youth ballet of Great Britain.

She will join the ballet group in performing at the Hackney Empire in London, The Ashcroft Theatre in Croydon and The Birmingham Hippodrome.

Siobhan Collins-McCarthy who runs the Harborne Dance school, said I am lucky to have Such talented and dedicated students and I believe they have much to offer the world of Classical ballet.

“Birmingham has become an important focal point for ballet and the standard in this city is respected worldwide.”